UK Outlook for Friday 27 Aug 2021 to Friday 10 Sep 2021:
Similar conditions look likely to continue into this period with higher than average pressure towards the west and southwest of the UK, producing a north-westerly flow. This would likely bring brighter and drier weather in the southwest and more unsettled conditions in the northwest. There is a chance of a warmer easterly flow in the south at times, which may bring the risk of heavy and possibly thundery showers. Temperatures are likely to be near or slightly above average overall. However, confidence is very low through this period.
